

Electrical Workers Minority Caucus COMMUNICATOR

2011 FALL EDITION

LETTER FROM PRESIDENT ROBBIE SPARKS

Change is Gonna Come

Brothers and Sisters, people all over the world are struggling with the economic, political and social upheaval taking place in their lives. When I think about it, I am reminded of a classic R&B song by Sam Cook, "It's been a long time coming, but I know a change is gonna come." It became an anthem for the civil rights movement because it speaks to the weariness that oppressed people feel with the powers that be. The weary tone and lyrics of "A Change is Gonna Come" perfectly reflect the theme of the recent social protests that have sprung up in cities all across America: "I was born by the river in a little tent, and just like that river I've been running ever since." There is a personal meaning in this lyric for me, which I will address later. But, it is also impossible to ignore all the little tents that have been sprouting up all over our country as people have returned to basic grass-roots protests to address their frustrations. This is a perfect time for our seasoned, experienced, visionary principles to take a firm hold again. We know this territory well and know this road. Indeed we have paved this road. Therefore I can tell you with confidence that I know change is coming to the labor movement, America and the global community too.

How we achieve this change is what concerns me. It will take much more than speeches and conference strategy sessions. It will take much more than debates among our intellectual and political leaders. And it certainly will take much more than putting our President, Barack Obama, back in the White House. There is nothing more effective for sustained progress in our social, political and economical development than a deep collective change in you. Each of you must vow to yourself, your families and your communities, that you will not fall prey to complacency again. You must make a personal vow to remove the target from your children and grandchildren's backs that big business and conservative forces across this country have placed there. Most importantly, you must vow to work with like minded people of all races to bring about a change that works for all of the 'have-nots'; for any division that pits you against your brother is simply a lie. You must vow to always be aware of the game of division and conflict being perpetrated by the 'have a lots' to keep the disadvantaged and uninformed confused and unfocused.

Your commitment to progress must continue when the tents of the occupy movement come down. You must continue to be the voice that inspires such movements; but also the firm structure that makes those well intentioned movements practical when the TV crews stop covering the commotion and people have to get some work done. We have been organizing for social justice across this country for generations. Jobs have always been a priority on our agenda. Quality, affordable healthcare has always been our clarion call; as has been quality housing, education and fair trade agreements. There is not much new under this protest sun; except, perhaps, that some members of our society have been forced to accept that they too have been taken advantage of by the greed of a conservative, big business, culture that cares very little for their well being. Again, minorities have faced these issues and more for generations; and we have risen to the task time and time again through collective action and a visionary faith that will not let us see anything but the change we instinctively know that we deserve. This visionary faith is what encourages me to tell you that indeed more changes for our collective good are in store for us.

As for my part in this process; just like that river that Sam Cooke sang about, I've been running 'ever since' I came into this movement. I am proud of how much progress we have made together even as I realize there is unfinished work ahead. Still, I know that our legacy is rich and that it is ordained by powers that are much greater than we are. I feel especially blessed to have been used by God to serve this force for good in the world that is our united labor movement. And with our rich legacy in heart and mind, I announce to you here that I am moving aside to rest after 45 plus years of service to the IBEW and the labor movement. I am passing the proverbial baton to you. I am passing our legacy onto you, those who have benefitted from what has been created on an earlier watch. I do this with faith that you will succeed. I am happy and confident that you have the collective will to continue to make sure that, in spirit and in truth, a change is surely going to come. Stand strong, Keep the visionary faith and know that I am always with you.

In Unity,

MESSAGE FROM VICE PRESIDENT VICTOR UNO

Forever Lifting and Forever Changing - Congratulations and Our Collective 'Thank You!'

Our Sister Robbie Sparks has announced her retirement as president of our Electrical Workers Minority Caucus. With this news, we are all filled with great love and appreciation for Sister Sparks and her lifelong commitment to lift all of us to a better station, in our personal lives and in our work in the IBEW.

When there were few voices challenging the IBEW status quo, when minority workers were small in numbers and smaller still in leadership positions, Robbie raised her voice to challenge all of us, and the IBEW, to "do the right thing" under her leadership.

As our president, she was able to build a strong, national organization by starting with each one of us as individuals. She showed us our own personal strengths and our own true worth. Robbie always showed great love and care for every member, intently listening to personal stories of struggle, on the job or in our family lives. By her example, word and deed, she touched each one of us, gave confidence and showed that each person mattered.

When we might have felt alone and isolated in our local union efforts, President Sparks gave us the strength of her vision, of diversity and full inclusion for all, to lift us and give us strength in our work. Members of all colors, cultures, genders and occupations were brought together in a common bond of unity and purpose to support, encourage and work for a better IBEW.

Our work in our community mattered, and EWMC members were lifted in spirit and purpose to become involved in local union activities. Because of her leadership, we persevered in our work, and we took up her challenge to become activists and advocates for the union cause. Member succeeded in completing apprenticeship programs, then took up responsibilities as mentors, instructors, union steward and officers. Stronger individuals and stronger locals have been built. The IBEW has been strengthened nationwide because of her work.

President Sparks has always spoken truth to power, with an engaging and effective manner and with personal powers of persuasion that moved IBEW policy and commitment to greater inclusion and diversity for all members. Because of her leadership, our EWMC is looked upon by other international unions as a model for activism and engagement to build a stronger labor movement.

Each one of us will have our own, personal words of appreciation for Sister Robbie Sparks as she retires as our president and I encourage every member to share with her your personal words and thoughts. Knowing Robbie, she will probably say that the greatest appreciation possible would be to continue the work of the EWMC and to continue to work hard to make our IBEW a stronger union.

We will make that commitment with the same deep and abiding faith in the purpose of the EWMC that Sister Sparks carried over these many years as our president. We send Robbie our thanks, our love and best wishes as she enters into her future endeavors.

Forever Lifting. Forever Challenging.

The EWMC mission continues to challenge members to work hard to become true leaders in their field of endeavor, help eliminate discriminatory practices in the workplace and union, lift up and help other workers along the way and create a spirit of inclusion and unification in the IBEW. It is in this spirit that we welcome you to join us this year for a very important conference.

Tribute to EWMC Founding Member: ART JONES

It is with great sadness we inform you that Art Jones, Ninth District International Representative, passed away on September 12, 2011. Art grew up in Northern California and graduated from Weed High School in Weed, California. He spent three years in the U.S. Army where he played football and ran track for the 4th Armored Division while stationed in Germany.

Brother Jones was initiated into IBEW Local 1969 in Redwood City, California, in May of 1963. In 1968 a strike led him into a career of union service. He served as a picket captain, then as the strike's rank-and-file chairman. He was assigned to the local union staff later that same year. He was appointed business manager/ financial secretary in 1969 and was elected to that office in 1970 and again in 1973. Art also served on all of the committees negotiating the local's 34 separate agreements.

He was one of the founders of the Black Caucus (EWMC) in 1974. Art worked diligently over the years to help build the Minority Caucus to improve the working conditions and representation of minorities in the IBEW. Most importantly, he led by example. He was always kind, thoughtful, knowledgeable and professional to all.

Brother Jones was appointed an international representative by then International President Charles Pillard in 1976. He organized in Louisiana, Alabama and Florida for a couple of years before returning to California, where he spent 25 years servicing manufacturing and construction locals in the Ninth District. Art took courses at the University of San Francisco, University of California at Berkeley and University of Oregon. He has also lectured on labor issues at UC Berkeley and Skyline College. He was a skilled negotiator and arbiter.

Arthur Jones was a great mentor and had a huge influence on the IBEW and the EWMC. He was always positive and gave constructive criticism. Brother Jones had a rare gift that he shared through mentoring. He helped enhance the credibility of the IBEW through his organizing and leadership. When International Representative Arthur J. Jones retired February 1, 2004, it was just a tad short of his 41st anniversary as an IBEW member. He leaves two children, Stanley and Michelle, and wife Alice along with other family and many friends.

Arthur J. Jones left a gigantic footprint on the IBEW and the labor movement. His contributions will live on through the many sisters and brothers he mentored.

Art will forever remain in our hearts.

O. Box 642, El Cerrito, CA 94530.

EWMC CONVENTION MEETING

The Electrical Workers Minority Caucus met on September 17, 2011 at the 38th International Convention, under the banner, "Always Moving Forward, Forever Lifting Up", where hundreds of members from every district of the brotherhood were called to action to build a more diverse and inclusive IBEW and labor movement. The meeting featured inspiring speeches, a poignant memorial and two strategic panel discussions with leaders from local unions that have exemplified the mission of building a more inclusive organization.

EWMC President Robbie Sparks charged the delegates to continue to fight to keep the gains of the labor and civil rights movement from being snatched away. She asked the delegates to make their voices heard in supporting and shoring up President Obama and the democratic party who are under constant attack. She then recalled her own roots, the daughter of a postal worker and a mother who, she says, "kept our house and cleaned someone else's too". "She remembered her first impression of unions: "I was making $1.03 per hour in 1966. I looked over at a union job that paid $2 per hour and I said that's where I want to be...It's time for all of us to hit the bricks [to defend collective bargaining and unions]. She also stated the way to make progress is to be prepared and "be inside the room [where decisions are made]."

She closed with "we can disagree with each other, but we don't have to fall out. So let's stop pointing the finger at what others aren't doing and point the finger back at ourselves and ask what are we doing for our union." She asked the delegates to continue the tradition of responsible and persistent advocacy that is the hallmark of the EWMC.

Carolyn Williams, Director of the Human Services Department, introduced a powerful Diversity statement from President Hill. (Please go to the IBEW website to view the 2-minute segment.) She discussed the IBEW's Diversity Training Program, AMPS, and indicated the program was the result of a resolution adopted at the 2006 IBEW Convention. She noted that the EWMC was largely responsible for generating and promoting passage of diversity and full participation resolutions since the late 1980s.

President Edwin Hill, Secretary-Treasurer Sam Chilia and First District Vice President Phil Flemming brought greetings to the delegates. Accompanying them were other International Vice Presidents and Officers. President Hill saluted the Caucus' role in fighting against an onslaught of anti-labor corporations and politicians. He said: "Dr. King once said that our lives begin to end the day we become silent about things that matter. And I take heart that I am here with an organization of proud trade unionists who have not and will never be silent as the ladder is pulled out from under workers who have worked so hard and played by the rules."

Local 3 Business Manager Christopher Erikson introduced a video memorializing his grandfather, the legendary Local 3 Business Manager, Harry VanArsdale, who was also a visionary and a civil rights activist. Van Arsdale was shown beside President John F. Kennedy, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Robert F. Kennedy and labor leader A. Philip Randolph, backed by the song, "Abraham, Martin and John."

The first panel entitled "Leading the Way" was moderated by Larry Greenhill Sr. of Local 26, and included Eric Brown, and Diana Limon, Local 11; Stan Stosel, Local 47; Madison Burnette, Local 357; and John Easton Jr., Local 716. The panel discussed strategies used by progressive union leaders to overcome challenges that plaque people of color and women in the workplace and union; the status of women in the workplace; the importance of political and community alliances; building unionism in a sometimes hostile environment; leadership and skills enhancement training.

Dorothy Fortier, EWMC Secretary-Treasurer, first recognized Votis Stamps, a founding member of the 1974 Caucus, then called “Black Caucus,” and talked about the initial formation, history, struggles and mission of the EWMC to date.

Victor Uno, EWMC Vice President and Karen Stoshnof, Assistant Business Manager from Canadian Local 254, talked about “The State of the Union” and the myriad of issues confronting people of color and women in today’s economy (from an U.S. and Canadian perspective) and the need for diversity and inclusion as part of any strategic plan labor will employ in the future.

The second panel, “Mission Possible”, moderated by Charlotte White from Local 15, included Gary Parker, Local 11; Sean Bagsby, Local 46; Wendell Yee, Local 3; Grace Smith, Local 824; and Martin Marrufo, Local 18. They discussed methods of successful organizing (internal and external) people of color and women. Organizing and leadership strategies related to youth, women and immigrants, as well as community relations and politics were highlighted along with the benefits of union membership for workers, unions and communities. Brothers Bagsby, Marrufo and Parker spoke about the new workforce entering the electrical field, some of whom have “difficult backgrounds and issues. Each presenter detailed successful training programs their unions have undertaken to prepare these workers with the necessary skills to enter today’s workplace.

President Sparks closed the meeting by asking the delegates to continue to speak in one strong voice for labor and working families and lift those up who have no voice, which she said “is what the EWMC is all about.”

IMPORTANT CONVENTION ACTION: The following Resolutions (13 and 14) coincide with the EWMC Mission and provide significant guidance to and inform policy for the local unions. They were unanimously adopted by the delegates at the Convention.

RESOLUTION 13: Diversity and Full Inclusion

WHEREAS, the IBEW has stood as a leader among the great unions in the American and Canadian labor movements; and

WHEREAS, one of the IBEW’s greatest strengths is the diversity of its membership; and

WHEREAS, diversity and inclusion are issues of respect, and the IBEW must have a goal of equal welcome and opportunity for all in hiring, organizing, representation, outreach, and leadership; and

WHEREAS, when inclusive, the labor movement has broken barriers, challenged prejudice, improved wages and benefits for all workers, opened doors, and created opportunity for leadership; and

WHEREAS, the IBEW cannot build a better future for working families without the full strength brought by sisters and brothers of every description, and this strength is the core of the IBEW for collective bargaining, political and legislative action, organizing, and other activities; and

WHEREAS, many people from different walks of life still encounter negative stereotypes and discrimination throughout society and, sadly, even within the labor movement; and

WHEREAS, the IBEW Committee on Diversity and Full Inclusion was established and provided recommendations to the International President on methods to achieve greater visibility for people of color, women, and other underrepresented groups in union activities, and as representatives of the IBEW;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that building on the successful work of the IBEW Committee on Diversity and Full Inclusion and the introduction of the Amplified Membership Participation = Strength (AMPS) training program, the IBEW will continue to devote time and resources to promote an organizational culture of respect that makes our Brotherhood a union that welcomes, values, and gives voice to all members, protecting members from discrimination and inequality and promoting awareness of and skills for respecting differences and building solidarity across a diverse membership; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the IBEW will continue to encourage diverse representation at all levels of the organization, provide education to inform of the unique needs of a diverse membership, and ensure that training and opportunity for leadership is inclusive rather than arbitrary; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the IBEW will accelerate its effort to attract and recruit a diverse pool of young people into the union; and

BE IT FINALLY RESOLVED that the IBEW will be a model of hiring and promotion practices for women, people of color, and other underrepresented groups and review internal policies and practices with an eye toward making them as open and inclusive as possible.

RESOLUTION 14: Empowering the Next Generation & Ensuring Our Future

WHEREAS, the continued strength and vitality of the labor movement depends heavily on the ability of younger union members to develop into strong and effective labor leaders; and

WHEREAS, the future of IBEW members, whether retired or just starting their careers, is reliant on our union's ability to attract new members and nurture effective new leadership; and

WHEREAS, investing in the next generation of union leaders, with special attention on women, people of color, newly organized, and young workers, is a strategic priority for the IBEW; and

WHEREAS, we must recognize and respond to the changes that have taken place in the American workforce, which reflects the most significant demographic change in the past 50 years with the increasing participation of women as well as a significant demographic change in the presence of young workers; and

WHEREAS, over 70 percent of those ages 16-34 are part of the civilian labor force, but only 8.2 percent of them belong to unions; and

WHEREAS, the future of the labor movement depends upon fresh approaches to organizing, including exciting and innovative strategies and tools being developed by young organizers using new technology and social media; and

WHEREAS, just as earlier IBEW leaders did, we must pass the message of strong unionism and the skills of responsible leadership to each generation of new members and officers; and

WHEREAS, the IBEW continues to provide great leadership within the American and Canadian labor movement and is recognized for improving the lives of its members; and

WHEREAS, the IBEW works hard to promote safety in the workplace in order to protect lives and property, and seeks to maintain the highest level of professionalism within the entire electrical industry while steadfastly holding to the belief that all workers deserve respect, dignity, and opportunity; and

WHEREAS, the strength of the labor movement can only be sustained by embracing diversity within the labor force, including young workers; and

WHEREAS, the economic crisis has disproportionately affected young workers; and

WHEREAS, the IBEW participated in the National AFL-CIO Young Workers Summit in June 2010 to promote new initiatives and programs to bring young workers into the labor movement at the national, state, and local levels; and

WHEREAS, many IBEW local unions who participated in the Young Workers Summit in June 2010 have taken the lead and initiated and/or improved systematic outreach to their younger members as part of a sustained leadership development and organizing drive to build and strengthen our union;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the IBEW address the predicament that young workers are facing in this recession by supporting legislation that creates jobs and affords education and training opportunities for new entrants into the workforce; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the IBEW actively encourage and support programs among local unions and affiliates aimed at bringing young workers into the labor movement and dedicated to the leadership development of younger union members; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that youth must become a central outreach and organizing priority for all IBEW local unions; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that each local union is requested to recruit young members and leaders as participants in every major union event, from meetings and trainings to conferences and conventions; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the International Office will encourage continued opportunities for young workers to participate at branch conferences and district progress meetings; and

BE IT FINALLY RESOLVED that the International Office will develop a conference, in 2012 in conjunction with the AFL-CIO Conference, specifically designed to encourage the growth of the young workers movement within the IBEW.
